Hi!

I am sharing my experience/feedback for the benefit of all parents whose child might have similar problem.

When I came to Dr. Sunil, I had already taken opinion from Allopathy and decided that homeopathy was the best option. My confidence in homeopathy was/has never been great, but since one of our family friends had similar problem successfully rectified, I went with Dr. Sunil whole heartedly.

This is very important... to have full faith and sincerely follow the whole treatment. Although slow, the results are extremely good and no mark or evidence of the disease is left behind in the end.

It is also important to adhere to the advice on certain food restrictions. This is very important as it also develops discipline in the child. Further since the medicines are very easy to take (and sweet), the child also makes no fuss in taking them. The treatment method followed by Dr. Sunil is holistic in approach and all elements (including medicine, precautions, food habits, etc) of the treatment are equally important. Go with this attitude and you shall succeed in the treatment.

Please feel free to call me to take more idea on this and discuss about it.

Thanks
a ton to Dr. Sunil!
